Pursuing an academic career requires a high level of commitment and flexibility. Many scientists face the challenge of reconciling their professional careers with their families or the career plans of their partners. How can universities and research institutions best support them?

In order to investigate this topic, an online survey is carried out as part of the programme “Equal opportunities and university development” 2017-20/21 (coordinated by swissuniversities) of all persons holding a scientific position at a Swiss university or ETH Domain.

The following link will take you to the online questionnaire:

We kindly ask you to complete the questionnaire by November 30, 2021. Your participation is extremely important for the representativeness of the results – even if the issues of combining career and private life are not foremost in your current situation, or if you have not yet decided whether or not to pursue an academic career.

The rectors of the Swiss universities, the presidents of the two Federal Institutes of Technology and the management of the research institutions support the project. The results aim to enable the universities and research institutions to optimally align their measures to promote young researchers and to facilitate the reconciliation of family and working life with the needs of their staff. This survey also serves to update the survey conducted 10 years ago.

This survey is carried out by Büro BASS, an independent Center for Labour and Social Policy Studies. Your information will be treated with strict confidentiality and the analyses will not allow any conclusions to be drawn about individuals. The fully anonymised data can be passed on for research purposes.

If you have any questions, please contact survey@buerobass.ch

We thank you very much for taking the time to participate in this survey.
